

Beijing Capital International Airport Company Limited Announces January Traffic Data

[12 February 2014 - Beijing] Beijing Capital International Airport Company Limited ("BCIA" or the "Company", Bloomberg code: 694.HK) posted data aircraft movements of 48,220 and passenger throughput of 7,060,000 approximately in January 2014, representing an increase of 5.6% and 9.2% respectively, as compared with the same period of the previous year. The aircraft movements by domestic air routes recorded a rise of approximately 6.2% year-on-year. The aircraft movements by international, Hong Kong, Macau & Taiwan air routes were increased by approximately 3.3% year-on-year (The aircraft movements by foreign Airlines was decreased by approximately 1.0% year-on-year). The passenger throughput by domestic air routes was increased by approximately 8.3%. The passenger throughput by international, Hong Kong, Macau & Taiwan air routes was increased by approximately 12.2% (The passenger throughput by foreign Airlines was increased by approximately 7.1% year-on-year).

The traffic data in January of 2014 was influenced by the Spring Festival travel rush.

— END —

About Beijing Capital International Airport Company Limited

Beijing Capital International Airport Company Limited was incorporated as a joint stock company with limited liability in the People's Republic of China on 15 October 1999 to take over and manage the aeronautical operations and certain ancillary commercial businesses at the international airport in Beijing, the PRC. The Company was listed on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange on 1 February 2000. At present, the Company owns three terminals, three runways and completed facilities for serving passengers and handling cargos to operate and manage aeronautical and non-aeronautical businesses mainly in Beijing Airport. As at the end of 2013, there were 236 flight points at the Beijing Airport, including 126 domestic and 110 international and regional flight points.

This express report is issued by Beijing Capital International Airport Company Limited.